A REQULAR meeting of St. John Lodge, No. 618, S.C., will be held in Freemasons' Hall, Zetland Street, this evening, at 8.30 for 9 o'clock precisely. Visiting brethren are cordially invited.

We understand that a circular has been issued to all the Government servants to the effect that if they are known to gamble, or even to go to Kowloon City, they will be discharged.

We amitted to explain in last night's issue that as a full account of the Shanghai Races will be contributed by "An Old Sportsman," we have refrained from publishing the details as given in our northern contemporaries.

COLONEL Craster, commander of the staff of Royal Engineers here, leaves by the English mail on Thursday for Singapore, and after inspecting the staff there will proceed home to retire from the service. His successor is not known as yet.

Two months with hard labour was the sentence passed upon two Queen's Road West gambling club managers-who were "nailed" by Inspector Quiecey last night, whilst carrying on their nef-rious pidgin-hy Mr. Wodehouse at the Magistracy to-day.

We understand that a new augar refinery is to be started somewhere in the Philippines. The report has depressed the shares in the Lucon Refinery pretty considerably, although the fact that there is plenty of room for both manufactories is shown by the establishment of a similar husiness in Vancouver, in connection with which the Batavia will take a cargo of sugar from Manila this trip.

interesting information that the Guthrie came off the slip at Manila on the 7th inst. As she arrived here yesterday the " news " was somewhat stale. We understand that the captain had to leave a hond for $20,000 with the owners of the Romulus, (the vessel that towed her into port when she was lying in imminent danger) to cover the claim for salvage.

IT will come as a startler to many that an omnibus company has been formed amongst some enterprising Chinese, who will soon run two-horse buses from Wanchai to West Point the line being along Queen's Road East and Central and down the Prays and Bonham Strand. Horses and vehicles will arrive within the next two months, and the Hongkong Bus Co. will be un fait accompli in the spring of 1891.

LAST night, for the second time, the performance 0.60 of "Madame Favart" by the "My Sweetheart" Opera Company had to be postponed at the last 0.75 | moment, owing to the illness of Mr. Watson. the pianist. To-morrow evening "The Daughter 1.00 of the Regiment? will be given, under the patronage of H.E. the Officer Commanding the Troors, and on Saturday that very pretty but little known opera, "Manola" will be staged; the plot of which we shall give to-morrow for the enlightenment of the multitude.

AT Foochow, owing to the drought, water is said to have become one of the most expensive articles of daily use in the city, the wells are either completely dried up or contain just enough for half a day's use. The canals which penetrate the city from various directions, and usually supply the city people with water, are also dried up, owing to the shallowness of the river. Water carriers are said to be making a fortune, as two huckets of water, containing some five or six gallons, which were obtainable for five or six cash, are now as high as forty cash The Echo sincerely hopes that no fire will occus at present, as it might destroy the whole city.

An affair which will require official explanation has just come to light. On the 3rd inst a forcigner named Hoffmann was carried in a chair from the German Tavern in Queen's Road West to the Civil Dospital, and upon arrival at that institution admission was refused upon the grounds that the unfortunate man was "as dead as a door-nail," The body was carried on to the Mortuary, and there bundled into a box and planted! A Telegraph reporter called at the German Consulate this morning, and ascertained that His Imperial German Majesty's representative knows nothing whitever about the sudden dratise and pauper funeral of one of his subjects. And why, we humbly ark, has there been no magisterial inquiry into the circumstances connected with this man's death?

LAST evening at about half-past six o'clock fire broke out in the top floor of No. 47 Bonham Strand West. There was a fresh wind blowshooting forth from the roof and windows of the upper floors when the firemen arrived, it was feared it would be a difficult matter to check it. The Brigade, however, to set work with their usual promptitude and there being en unlimited supply of water close at hand the flames were soon extinguished, but not until the two top floors and the roof had been destroyed. | Surveyor-General in 1874, was then read. He The two top floors were occupied by Messrs, said that as far as his experience went Hon Tax Ching, agents for the North China there was no instance where the Government building was insured for $4.500.

THE Japan Gazette has been purchased by a syndicate of prominent foreign residents at Yokohama, and an effort is being made to form a similar company to buy out the Tepan Herald. The price paid for the Gazette is not definitely stated, but it is rumoured to be $50,000, half of which is to be paid in cash, and half is shares in the company. Mr. Walter Dening, a | far as he was aware the Government had well-known resident of Toklo, will assume the pover admitted such sights as were claimed by editorship of the Gazette under the new proprictary, whilst Mr. J. IN APPELLATE JURISDICTION.

(Before the Full Court.)

THE MARINE LOT QUESTION. Mr. E. J. Ackroyd, Acting Attorney-General, attended to show cause why the rule wise obtained by Mr. P. Ryrie, as trustee of the City Hall, to restrain the Government from proceeding with the Reclamation works in front of that lot should not be made absolute.-Mr. Francis, Q. C. (instructed by Mr. Mossop) appeared for Mr. Ryric. The Acting Attorney-General said that the rule had been made on a petition which set forth that the site of the City Hall had been properly leased from the Crown, with all the rights of a marine lot, which rights the Reclamation works were calculated to invade. In their answer to that petition the Government denied that the petitioner even had a right of access to the sea beyond that of the general public; and contended that the work of reclamation be assessed—that it was a case for a perpetual was being carried out by virtue of Ordinance 16 of 1879, passed by the Legislative Council. He understood that one of the arguments advanced by the petitioner was that that Ordinance had been passed ultra vires, and that it was not binding on the Court. The Legislative Council, he pointed out, derived its power to enact laws from Her Majesty's letters patent, published in May 1888, which set out that the Council might make laws for the peace, order, and good government of the Colony; her Majesty reserving the right to disallow anything so'enacted. He laid stress on the words " peace, order, and good government," as shewing that there was no restriction whateyer placed on the power of the Council to enact laws. The Reclamation Ordinance was assented to by the Governor in May 1880. He then quoted a number of cases in which the supreme powers of Colonial Legislatures had been called into question, shewing that they did possess such power, and not delegated authority. That being so, and the Ordinance having received the Royal assent, he submitted that the government had full power to carry out the works so

Mr. Francis pointed out that the Queen did not assent to it—she simply did not disallow it. Sir James Russell asked if an Ordinance that' gave the Council power to confiscate private rights had the same force, if, only approved by the Secretary of State for the Colonies, as if it had been considered before the Queen in Council? Mr. Francis-My contention is that even if the Queen sanctioned the Ordinance it would have no more validity, and would be equally beyond her legislative powers. It is contrary to Magna Charta to use the royal prerogative to deprive a

Sir James Russell thought there were two points raised-ore was whether there was any invasion of private rights to entitle the owner to an injunction, and, if so, whether it was barred by the Ordinance.

Under the lease the Government retained the right to resume the land if required. and therefore an injunction was not the remedy. because it would stop the Government from exercising their right under the Ordinance. It they could resume the land they could surely resume any rights pertaining to it. Mr. Francis-I should say they were indistinguishably attached to it. Mr. Ackroyd further submitted that the plaintiffs were too late : the work had been going on since the Ordinance was passed in May 1880, and as the plaintiffs only took steps now they were not entitled to ask that the work he suspended. The lot was only used as a site for the (ity Hall, and the reclamation could not affect the plaintiffs' rights; they were not riparian owners. Special damage would have to be proved-not merely inconvenience—and against that it would be shewn that no special rights of access were conceded in the lease.' A very great deal had been made of the words " Marine lot " in the plaintiffs' affidavits, but that, he urged, was only a designation in registering the land, signifying its location, and not necessarily implying riparian rights. Even if it did, the limited use of the City Hall made any invasion of its foreshore rights very unimportant as compared with those of a dock or a slip. In 1817 a despatch was sent by the Secretary of State in which he distinctly, stated that wherever a lot was built in front of a marine lot so as to interfere with the purposes for which the latter was used, the Government could give compensation. Mr. Ackroyd then read an affidavit by Mr. Bruce . Shepherd: Land Officer, who said that he was Secretary to Land Commission ing at the time, and as the flames were already in 1886, and was well acquanted with the tenure of land in Hongkong. There were two kinds of marine lots-some had a right of access to the shore, and others were bounded by the Praya, and had other lots between them and the water. The Crown had never ceded its right to the foreshore except by special arrangement.

An affidavit by Mr. Bowdler, Assistant Insurance Co., who are also the emigration | had done anything to forego their rights to the agents of Meisrs. Butterfield and Swire. The foreshore. Re-examined-In all cases where there had been an extension of marine lots it had been done by special arrangement with Government. Mr. Francis, in summing up, said neither a leasee nor the Government could in any way interfere with the foreshore of a marine lot unless by special agreement. As soon as Government leased the land to Mr. Ryrie as a "marine lot" it waived its right to do as it pleased with the foreshore. He did not deny the rights of Government as regarded the property of the land, but it had, their lordships would see, waived the right of interference with the foreshore. admitted the rights of the Crown, but submitted that they were exceeded in this case.

Sir James Russell-I have heard your quotation from Lord Knutsford's despatch and am of opinion that it is most fair in tone-that anyone who suffered by action of the Government should be fairly compensated.

Mr. Francis, continuing, said the shareholders in the City Hall looked forward to profit from their investment, and held a common lease with the sole prohibitions that they must not sell or mortgage it, or change its use. If it were put back 150 or 250 feet from the sea its value would be considerably diminished.

Mr. Justice Clarke-You haven't shewn that Mr. Francis pointed out that Mr. Ryrie had sworn that in his affidavit. Sir James Russell rejoined that it was question

For instance the Committee had considered the desirability of letting the basement to the Rowing Club, which would be impossible if access to the sea was cut off. The remainder of his argument was directed towards obtaining an injunction, which, he said, would have been readily granted if it had been only a question between two individuals."

Sir James Russell-You probably would. This is an important work that the Government has ur dertaken, and the Fuil Court has sat in order that there may be immediate appeal if desired by either side. Mr. Wodehouse continued the hearing of the Su Fei Wun extradition case, at the Police Court to-day. THE COST OF GROWING AND PREPARING TEA.

In the August issue of the British Trade Yournal a correspondent, at Shanghai, called attention to the outlook for establishing tea factories in China, and desired to be informed as to the cost of growing and preparing tea in other parts of the world. Since the publication of his letter there has come to hand a series of figures dealing with the yield and cost of teapreparing for the year 1889 in Matale, East Ceylon, on what is described as one of the Sir James Russell-If he does I don't think | finest estates, that of Mr. Joseph Frazer al Damboolgalla-which thirty years ago was devoted principally to coffee growing. It is the opinion of competent authorities that the net return for the whole crop is such as to make the percentage of profit on outlay as good as that of of any of the celebrated Indian tea companies. The best returns in the table before us regarding Ceylon are those from land which had been under chinchons for three years, the trees being from five to six years old. Here the yield per acre was 865 lbs. in 1899, 342 lbs. in 1888; and frogs are often eaten in the North of England. In 267 lbs. in 1887. 'David Livingstone tells us that the aboriginal Australians and the Hottentots prefer the intestines of animals, and he adds that "it is curious that which is also caten in Sumatra. Dr. Livingstone speaks of elephant's foot as excellent. We had the foot cooked fir breakfast, and found it delicious. It is a whitish mass, alightly gelatinous and sweet, like marrow. A long march to prevent billousness is a wise precaution after a feast on elephant's foot. Elephant's tongue and trunk are also good, and after long simmering much resemble the humps of a buffalo and the tongue of an ox; but all the other meat is tough, and from its peculiar flavour only to be eaten by a hungry man." The elephants caten success, and the liver was pronounced finer than that of any goose or duck.

The people of Zanzibar should stand high for the comprehensive character of their cuisine. Among other delicacies are a small monkey and a fruit-eating bat, Locusts are relished by the Bedawin of Mesopotamia and some other eastern tribes: they are placed on strings and eaten on journeys with bitter and unleavened bread. The Jews, who were prohibited eating many kinds of food which our larger experience teaches us are palatable and wholesome, as well as some that we do not venture to touch, were permitted to have their fill of locusts. The locust is an article of diet to this day, but only of the very poor : it is thrown into boiling water, and eaten with salt. To live on locusts and wild honey conveys a more accurate picture of extreme poverty and frugality to a traveller in the East than to any one else. Locusts, however, are not always cooked; sometimes they are eaten fresh. They are said to have a strong vegetable taste; the flavour largely depending, as might be expected, on the plants on which they have been feeding. Dr. Livingstone, who showed his common sense by not being fastidious, considered them palatable when roasted. Some of the savage tribes of South America are accused of enting everything that by any possibility will support human life. Humbeldt saw 'children drag enormous centipedes from their holes and crunch them between their teath; but insects and their larvae are favourite foods. in many parts of the world. In the West Indies a large caterpillar, found on the palm-tree, is reckoned a great delicacy-and why not, let us ask? To our civilized taste, however, carrion and bad eggs seem foods which no human being could relish. Not so-he Chinese prefer state to fresh eggs, and the Parishs of Hindestant fight greedily with the dogs and lackals for buttid carrion. They would relish the musette. a kind of bat plentiful in Juya, which the natives value; but although its flesh is white, delicate, and tender, it generally smells strongly of musk.

The Nagus also ent raw ment. Among the Greenlanders and the Eskimo the seal is an important food; and in spite of being coarse and oily, was formerly enten in England. The porpoise was also an English dish, and its liver is, when fried, still, we believe, relished by sailors. Arctic explorers have found the welras very palatable, and it is largely consumed by the Eskimo. The Japanese, New Zealanders, and Western Australians consider the whale good eating; and the Eskimo highly approve of blubber, and get through enormous quantities of it. The crocodile is greedily devoured by the natives of certain districts of Africa. Its regs in taste resemble hen's eggs with, perhaps, a smack of custard

To come to our own country, where we do not eat sauerkraut and blubber, birds' nests and pupples, we shall nevertheless find some old foods. The hedge-hog, a favorite dish in Barbary. and not disapproved in Spain, is eaten by gypsies; squirrels, too, are occasionally cooked In this country, and are most delicious and fully es palatable as jugged hare; at any ra'e we have ourselves stewed them, and we can testify that they are excellent. It is even said that some parts of England snails are still eaten, not as ordinary articles of diet, but at stated feasts. We have in bygone days, when living on the borders of the nail-making districts of Staffordshire, seen men filling paper bags with snalls to make soup, and we remember being told that they are very excellent eating. The English prejudice against snails is singular, since, from time immemorial, considerable quantities have been collected round London and on the Kent pastures for export to France. In the latter country there is no squeamishness; most people there only regret that snails are too expensive to be indulged in frequently. In Covent-garden the common snall often appears for sale, the corn; in nitrogenous constituents, and takes rank | purchasers, however, are nimost exclusively members of the French, Austrian, and Italian

It is 40 li round, backed on the north and west by mountains, and facing it on the east rise two precipitious bills called Tien-mo and Yaongo and not far to its south rushes the Han river, which has a rise and fall of 40 feet.

To defend the five thousand I coast-line of this country of inexhaustible mineral wealth, lying so near to both Russia and Japan, is a problem for which, however difficult, we must find a solution, and that soon. We have now a fleet of at least 60 war-vessels of wood or iron, divided into the Northern & Southern Squadrons, the former the more powerful. It would be a goodeplan to establish, at some post equidistant from north and south, a naval depôt as the headquarters of a flect of say 16'vessels, to be constantly exercised as a flying squadron, visiting by turns the Tumen river on the north, the Haenan waters on the south, or Tsushima and Liukiu on the cast. At Port Arthur, in Fengt'ien, Weihai in Shantung, Singi in Korea Tamsul in Formesa, Heihow in Kuangtung, Chusan in Cheklang, and T'aung-ming in Klangsu, some men-of-war should be constantly stationed. By such a distribution, from whatever quarter a surprise was attempted, a first line of defence would be ready, to reinforce which assistance could quickly arrive. If China is strong, Korea will be let alone, and we may even open new ports in it to foreign intercourse, not only without danger, but with increased safety. Such might be in the province of Hawking Lifeng, Sungtao and in Kingyuan, Sanshe, Welchen in Kingshang, Ch'ang-yuan in Ta'uanlo, Wuan in Pingan, Sanhwa.

Land defence should occupy our attention, as well as the efficiency of our fleet. By land we have been even more successful in war than by sea, and attackable points on the Korcan coast should be so fortified and garrisoned as to ensure the annihilation of a hostile landing force. They should fare as did the French who landed. at Kelung, when Liu Ming-chuan in one action took from them 8 cannon and 3,000 rifles. Along the Tumen, the brave Korean tiger-hunters should be encamped, as the eight banners of the Tartais are camped in line elsewhere, to guard the frontier. The Russians (of whose trustworthness as neighbours the Deer Island incident was such a striking instance) began in 1887 their Eastern Siberian Railroad, under the direction of Baron Korff, Governor of the Ussurl province, and General Ignatieff. This was to be finished in five years, when from St. Petersburg Vladivostock, 28 000. Chinese II (9,000 miles), trains will come in fifteen days. Since they obtained from Japan, in exchange for the Thousand Islands (the Kuriles), Tangt'aitao (Saghalien)-now called by its old name Rauych they have been developing the resources of that-large island and colonising it with troops, with the greatest energy. By the time the Russian railway is finished, Korea will be in a dangerous position unless we also move in the meantime.

Last year when the Governors of Chinese provinces were reporting on schemes for railways in Chipa, the defence of Linotung was referred to, and it was suggested to carry a line through from Shanhaikuan to Fengtien, thence N.E. to the N. bank of the Tumen and Kirin. A powerful gerrison should be kept on the Tumen to creamerate in case of need with the garrison at Kinghing and Kingyuan. In case of bostilities arising between Russia and Corea, we should then be able to attack the right flank of the invading force with our troops from Ninggata and to meet them with our forces of Petuna, From their rear we should come on them with our fleet attacking Hunchian, and on the Tumen river we should assail their left flank. With the southern Korean coast in addition strongly fortigain by an attack on Korea.

Thus Korea may be placed in a good position as regards defence, without making her into a province of China, as we are now advised by some to do, but leaving her still out tributary, with internal autonomy, free and encouraged to remove abuses of government and develop her vost resources-mining, commercial, and military. To defend her we shall not be obliged to draw closer the politicalities that unite her to us or to throw large garrisons of Chinese troops into the country. All that we need do to strengthen our naval power and make invulnerable to attack our own Kirin and the classic regions of the Long. White Mountain; our neighbour and tributary can do most of the rest herself.

SOOCHOW.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

October 30th. Over against the painful tales of flood and want that come to you from the North, let me place the cheerful fact that in the delta of the Yangize River the rice crop is unusually fine. have recently been from Hangchow to Shanghal, and along the whole line I found that the rice crop, already partly harvested, is abundant, By actual count I found that rice stalks with 50, neighbour. On account of the great rain last year the towpath along the line of the Grand Canal from Soochow to Hangchow was covered by from one to four feet of water, and in many places almost washed away. Along the side of the canal, at the edge of the water, there has been for years a rugged line of large stones that have damaged many boats. Wherever a broken bridge was found, the stones were many and the danger specially great. A considerable outlay has been made this year to effect much needed repairs. These stones (which have saved the lives of thousands by not knocking holes in the bottoms of their boats i) have been hauled out of the water and put down as the foundation of a newly widened and heightened embankment, on whose top the towpath runs. Bridges that spanned the creeks which cut the tow-path in two have been repaired; in a few cases new bridges have been built. The result is a very great improvement in the tow-path. South and south-east of the Great Lake there are many lakelets. The traveller in that region sees a great deal of water beyond the tow-path. This has led in some cases to putting the telegraph poles on the tow-path embankment. The raising of this has piled a lot of earth around the feet of the poles. But I saw, between the town of Pingwang and the prefectural city Kiahing, a few poles (near numbers 110 and 120) that ought to be replaced by new

No small stir was lately caused in Soochow by a bold thief, who entered a temple and stole the gold heart and silver bowels of a much-talked-of Idol. NEWCHWANG.

"(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

October 29th.

The frosty weather keeps off unusually long. for although the thermometer has been within half a degree of freezing point, there has not, so far, been any ice, nor have we yet had one of those blustering snowy days, that are apt to astonish new arrivals. In fact the weather is deliciously fresh and pleasant. Steamers and sailing vessels are making their appearance for the purpose of new pulse, shipm nts, but some are obliged to be artisfied with such stocks as remain from last year, as new season's peas are no down yet in any quantity. Growers, however, or speculators are asking high rates, and shippers will have to pay or lose large sum for freights engaged. The Leeyuen is taking another cargo of millet for Tientsin, and the Yungching just in, some say, will also ship millet, others have it that she will go to Shanghal. Very lary quantities of cotton are coming, a great many hales having already been imported. As the season advances, imports of all kinds increase, and this wih the large exports, make the port look very busy. If the weather keep fine all will be well, but one cannot tell how long it will last, although the general idea is that the winter will not be earlier than last year. This is a tolerably safe prophecy, and to attempt anything more oracular would be ambitious .- N. C. Daily News.

PEKING.

(FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.) October 30th.

The markets of Peking present some strange fluctuations of late. At the beginning of the summer, grain was cheap and meats of virious kinds very dear. Now the reverse of this is true. Mutten can be had for 6 cents per catty, while grain is at the high water mark. The best rice Is 8 cents per catty, millet fo cents per tan and grains in proportion. The cheapness of mutton is explained by the fact that during the the heavy rains, the flocks of sheep on the Mongolian plains were not driven to Peking because of the impassable roads. Just as soon as the roads are opened, the flacks pour in and the markets are full of the best meat at the lowest rates. The grain is very expensive; it would seem as though meat was in reach even of the poorest. Chopped straw for horses, last year 80 | ST. J O H N cents per hundred catties, in now $1,20, and the price is still going up.

Fine mules can now be purchased at very low rates, as the farmers from the distressed regions are bringing their animals to Peking in great numbers for sale. Financial stress seems never to affect one market in Peking, and that is the bird market. On the great street near Four parlow, you can easily find this market by the throngs of people. There you will find fancy birds at fancy prices, large birds like the haw awl and falcon, all varieties down to the little pecwees which sell for a cash or so each. Often a whole cage-full will be purchased by some benevolent individual and set at liberty, often, however, only to be re-caught in a short time.

The distress in Paotihsien is confirmed not only by the representations of Father Watson, but also by the flocks of people from that region now coming to Peking to take advantage of the soup kitchens in the outhern city. The suffering there is most real. The writer met an official from Paoti coming to Peking to solicit a share of the famine relief funds so liberally given out by the Government. The remark being made that his cart seemed heavily laden for the luggage he had, he replied that he was taking a large sum of silver to fee the officials in Paking, so that his communication would be received. The reference in the N. C. Herald to the fact that the people fied, it is difficult to see what the Russians could of Paoti were passed by in previous distributions of grain and their care misrepresented. is true. The sad fact is that doubtless, the bribe given to the officers was too small to secure their interposition. That the management of Famine Relief funds is a most desirable position is proved by the fact that an officer in a lucrative position in Peking resigned in order to take up rel of work with 'less assured, pay and a precarious tenure of office. It seems the very frony of fate that these poor people with their benevolent magistrate who has resigned a good share of his income, should be obliged to empty out the few cash they may have had remaining in order to fee the well-paid officers in Peking. Apropos of the above is the fact that the last inspection of the Imperial granaries reveals a deficiency of 150,000 tau of rice. It is not the usual time of official visitation and would not have taken place except for the long and loud complaints from the poor people that the black millet and rice dealt out to them could not be exten. The crafty guardians of the granaries had been dealing to the famine-stricken people grain which was supposed to be (and really was) spoiled beyond use, and had been selling the good rice and filling their pockets with the silver. A strict investigation is ordered and will doubtless result in the conviction of the thieves.

An honest Censor is again the subject of the Emperor's wrath, In imitation of Chien Lung (1722 A.D.), the Emperor had designed a great feast and celebration in honour of the sixticth 60, and 70 grains are common: 80 and 90 birthday of his aunt, the Empress Dowager. frequent, and 100 by no means rare; 145 was The great hall in honour of the occasion, which the highest. Making all due allowance for loss | had been built by his ancestor, Ch'len Lung. it is safe to say that the farmers are now reaping now in decay near the Yuan Ming Yuan thirty or forty, bushels of rice for each bushel of was to be reconstructed and another hall erected seed sown. The cotton crop, however, is very beside it, to exhibit his filial devotion. The light owing to dry weather. The export of Censor memorialised the throne to the effect cotton to the ports of Japan is increasing year | that in view of the disastrous rains and the by year, and this partial failure of the crop will poverty of the people, such an expenditure of be felt by both China and her enterprising money would not be appropriate at the present time.
